vers The second-to-last episode of the "New Orleans" documentary premiered Tuesday.. There are three main sources of information on the minimum wage, according to the Canadian Federation of Independent Business's Employment Standards Branch. First, there is the Labour Force Survey, which is an annual survey completed by Statistics Canada, with information on employment status, work hours and other employment characteristics in all federal and federal-provincial jurisdictions. Second, there is the Centre for Economic Policy Research's (CEPR) Employment Outlook, which is based on economic analysis done over a twelve-month period. Statistics Canada's EEO study is a survey of 10,000 full time workers in the United States, by industry. This type of study is typically used if employers are concerned about the employment prospects of new and inexperienced workers, and this type of survey has helped explain the employment trends that the Harper government is worried about.
